Stop to view St Anne's Church, admired by many (including Napoleon), this is a tiny, gothic gem standing in a city of baroque buildings. Continue on to the quirky Uzupis district - declared a republic by the bohemian citizens that live here. Home to artists, musicians, squatters and free-spirits - the galleries, street art, workshops and communal living spaces offer a glimpse into a different side of Vilnius.

Afterwards, head to Subaciaus Hill for sweeping views of the city, then learn about the heritage of Old Town, one of the largest surviving medieval old towns in Northern Europe. Full of Jewish, Russian and Polish influences, there are many different cultures and religions present in this part of Vilnius. Feeling hungry?
